

Online education is becoming an increasingly viable, accepted form of instruction but still has room for further development

Online learning survey, conducted 2011

% offering online courses

% of people unaware of...

